Answer the questions (8-9-10) according to the passage below.

Snowboarding, BASE jumping, skydiving, mountain biking, and hang gliding are all considered "extreme" sports because these sports involve some degree of danger, fear and lots of excitement. Many people prefer these sports to traditional options like football or golf. Jack who is 21 now, started snowboarding when he was nine years old. The first time he did it, he was scared a lot but now he says the hills are calling him once winter comes. Lucy, started bungee jumping five years ago because she wanted to add some adventure to her life. She is now 35 and she has tried bungee jumping in different parts of the world with beautiful scenery. While some people think that extreme sports are highly dangerous, others try doing these sports with their kids. Kyle for example, loves mountainbiking and she takes her two sons James and Paul with her. She says, extreme sports help children to have some experience in different sports and teach them how to keep themselves safe and grow their self-confidence.

8 What's NOT correct about extreme sports?

- A Danger is often a part of these sports.
- B They give the athletes a lot of excitement.
- C Mountain biking is an example of extreme sports.
- D There are very few people who do extreme sports.
